Baby-Farming in New York City—Where, When, and How to Get a Baby.

New York Correspondence of the Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Philadelphia readers of the New York daily newspapers will probably at one time or other have had their attention attracted to a certain quarter of the journal wherein parties wishing to adopt beautiful blue eyed babies could be accommodated upon reasonable terms. Sometimes it is added that the adopting party must be a professing Christian, but more often the advertisement sets aside all considerations of faith and practice, and confines itself to statements in regard to the reasonableness of terms.

The blue eyed baby business is carried on to a greater extent in New York than in any other city upon the American continent. The number of blue-eyed babies that come to the surface in the columns of the daily and weekly press is immense. Baby-farming is a regularly recognized business in itself, and those harpies who engage in the profession are most successful who part with the greatest number of babies for a consideration.

There are several of these baby farmers in New York. One of them is in St. Mark's place, where a female physician, in conjunction with a male one, undertakes to supply Christian families with as many blue-eyed babies as may be desired She never makes any charge, but it is tacitly understood that babies of various degrees of blue eyed beauty are to be procured from her at all prices between $50 and $150. The proprietress has a shrewd tongue, a long head, and a short manner, and is not capable of being browbeaten. Another one is on Third avenue, near to Stewart's. It is located over a shop, and pervaded with an air of intense respectability. Indeed, the "respectability" of these places is their most gratifying and salutary characteristic. The servant who opens the door may look dowdy around the hair and dirty around the neck, but she is respectable, the parlor into which you are shown may have a cemetery like mouldiness of atmosphere, suggestive of new-made graves, but the pictures on the wall are scriptural in subject, and the few ornaments are uniformably correct and respectable, the "lady" who receives you is generally attired in black bombazine (as though she were a Rachel weeping for other people's children), but the respectability of her appearance and language is one of the first things that strikes you. This Third avenue establishment is, however, more of an office than anything else. The real hospital and nursery is "further up town"

In Nineteenth street is a third baby farm, and these three are the principal ones of Gotham. From these issue most of the advertisements which dupes, blessed with no children of their own, and wishing to adopt those of others, so readily answer. Scattered all over the city are smaller ones, where the business is less artistically conducted, and the police descents upon which render a temporary residence there extremely risky.

It is in holes like these that the nobodies' children of New York, who somehow or other are "left over," and never adopted out, go through a protracted course of ill treatment, which finally bring them to the grave. Whatever sorrowful chance may have taken the innocent visitor to such a house, he will have remarked with inexpressible compassion the old countenances of the withered and unhappy little children that there abound. These are the blue eyed babies that the advertisements run about, and which the female physician is so desirous of adopting out into a Christian family where they may experience the comforts of a home. Wretched children of nobody, I am sure they need it, for the tender mercies of the woman on whose hands they are left are sure, sooner or later, to conduct them to the grave.

Some of these children escape death, however, by being sent to Randall's Island, whose nurseries received during the year 1868 over eleven hundred such children. Here their condition is at least a little better than under the roof-tree of the venal friend who assisted their mothers (at the rate of $25 per week) in bringing them into the world They receive at least some education. The girls are taught sewing, and the boys get some inkling of farming. Thence, periodically, they are sent West, and in a few years no small proportion of the population of the prairie peopled West will consist of the grown up children of nobody. At the same time the condition of the juvenile occupants of Randall's Island—these little illegitimate ones—is nothing to brag of. The nurses there who take charge of the younger children mix a great deal of their milk of human kindness with bad gin and educate the innocents to a love of whiskey. The mortality among the infant population is extremely large. Last year much more than one-half the entire number admitted died The various children's hospitals and other charitable institutions for children established in the city do something toward mitigating this evil; but all the benevolence heaped together seems but as a drop in a bucket. It is one of the great shames of New York that there are such excessive facilities for the "spotting away" of nobody's children, and one of the first steps toward reform should be the abolishment of all such advertisements as the blue-eyed baby ones

ALI BABA.

A Relic of Shakespeare.

The British Archæological Institute, now or lately in session, at Bury St. Edmunds, has received what purports to be an autograph of Shakespeare. This interesting relic is now under consideration, with a view to determine its authenticity. The autograph reads thus: "thyne Swetasse W. Shakspere Brotherde Marche 16" The handwriting is described as fine and delicate. This autograph is contained in a little copy of Ovid, printed at Amsterdam 1630, seventeen years after Shakespeare's death. It is written on a bit of paper apparently the end of a letter—which is pasted on the ninth page of the volume. The paper is old, and it is alleged, of the sort used in Shakespeare's time. The fifth page of this little Ovid is likewise covered with paper, pasted over it, and on that again are pasted autographs of "Hugh Middleton" and "John Dryden." The Ovid containing these relics, if such they be, is the property of the Rev. H. S Hawkins, rector of Brixton, son of Edward Hawkins, late Keeper of Antiquities in the British Museum, a keen antiquary, and a member of the Archæological Institute.

The Rev. Mr. Hawkins declares that his brother—since dead—bought this book about thirty years ago of a bookseller named Lumley, in Chancery lane, for the sake of the Dryden autograph. Subsequently he discovered in it that of Shakespeare. But none of his friends would credit it as authentic, and so he put the book aside. At his death it came into possession of the present owner, who has invited a critical examination of it by the Institute. That examination will be attended with great perplexity. It is difficult to see how the authenticity of the autograph can be proved. Six autographs of Shakespeare are known to exist, and with these it can be compared; but, in the absence of facts as to its history, its genuineness must needs be distrusted. The great conflagration which devastated London in the reign of Charles the Second burned St. Paul's Cathedral, and therewith destroyed a great number of private libraries and other valuable literary property which had been brought to the Cathedral for shelter and safety. Much doubtless perished in that fire which would have illuminated the career of Shakespeare. As the case stands, the antiquaries have very little material of any sort whereon to rest a theory concerning anything connected with that great name. It would be delightful to know that posterity possesses a new scrap of his handwriting, but grave doubts forbid the delight at present.

No Safety in Bank Locks.

From the New York Times, August 24

At the time of the Ocean Bank robbery the Times announced that Mr. William F. Ensign, an expert of this city, had picked the combination lock on the safe of that institution, in presence of the officers of the bank, and the statement was by some declared to be erroneous. Subsequent investigation proved, however, that not only did he pick the lock in question, but that he did it with facility, and after the combinations had been made by the bank officers themselves, and were entirely unknown to him. A Washington dispatch, published in yesterday's Times, announces that Mr. James Sargent, of Rochester, has been operating on the patent combination locks on the Treasury Department safes in that city, which he succeeded in opening, first in an hour and twelve minutes, and afterwards in twelve minutes's time. The frequency with which burglars manage to open locks of the most improved character, and the fact that Mr. Ensign, in this city, and Mr. Sargent, in Washington, have proved conclusively that they can be opened, raises the question whether any of them are beyond the skill of expert burglars, and this suggestion created considerable agitation among bank officers in this city yesterday.

Mr. Ensign's mode of operating is a very simple one. He places underneath the key plate a small circular, smooth faced dial, having on it duplicates of the principal numbers that are the original lock, which numbers are graduated equidistantly from each other When the person who locks the safe turns the key, this dial receives an impression or scratch upon its surface, conformable to the exact position of the numbers on the lock at the possibility of any other scratch being obtained by a spring which depresses the receiving plate, whenever the key, after placing one number of the combination, is turned backward to place the other, and lets it up again when the reverse turn is made for the second, third or fourth point in the combination, as the case may be. This dial having been impressed by the key, when removed shows exactly at what points on the original number plate are the numbers which make up the combination used; and then it is a matter of simple calculation, from one extreme point to the other, what these particular numbers are. This being once ascertained, the working of the lock be comes easy, and puts the contents of the safe at the disposal of the operator The intricacies of the operation are somewhat varied, according to the peculiar character of the lock to be worked, but the general principle of all the patent combination arrangements is the same. Mr Ensign, three years ago, picked the lock of the safe of the National Exchange Bank of Lansingburg, set upon the combination of 50 50 50 50, also that of the State of Michigan, and several others, from the officers of which banking institutions he holds certificates, and he can pick other locks of the same character if he be allowed a burglar's time and opportunities It is not surprising, therefore, to learn that Mr Sargent, another expert, is also able to do the same thing to Washington with the locks of the Treasury safes In fact, judging from what has been done in the past, it seems to be no exaggeration to say that, given the opportunities desired, either Ensign or Sargent can pick the best lock in the strongest safe in the biggest bank in New York.

How Jim Wicker's Head Got Bald.

Jim Wicker was a comical looking fellow, with a very young face, but by reason of having no hair he looked very old from his eyebrows all the way round to the back of his neck He was very sensitive about this defect, and was somewhat celebrated from a fight he had with a travelling agriculturist, who, upon being asked by Jim "What would cause the hair to grow upon his shining poll," advised him to "cover the top of his head with guano and plant it down in the crab grass." But Jim wouldn't quarrel with Capt. Wild, for that gentleman was not only host of the Fairy Queen, but also had the key of all "the refreshments" in his possession; so without hesitation he enlightened his auditor after this fashion:

"You see the har always did grow rather scarce 'bout my scalp, and I was always rubbing one thing and another to fotch it out, though ther was little to be seen above ground. I'd heard of har's grease, and bought a gallon in bottles, but I believe it was nothing but hog's lard and mutton tallar; so I thought I would have the genuine article, and I got old Dan to go out and kill something for my especial benefit. Dan told me it was in the spring, and that the har was in bad health and out of season; but I believed he was trying to deceive me, and wouldn't take no for an answer. A short hunt fotched a critter at bay, and Dan by a shot in the vitals saved the varmint; but the har was in a bad condition, for he looked as seedy as an old Canadian thistle, and he had hardly enough in him to keep his joints from squeaking, but what he did have I got and used; and, stranger," said Jim, looking sorrowfully round at the company, "in two days what har I had commenced taking off, and in a week I was as bald as a gun barrel Dan was right; the warmint was shedding himself, and there was nothing in him but har shedding ile, and the consequence is, I can't in the dark tell my head from a dried gourd, if I depend on feeling"

Fiftieth Year of Peter Cartwright's Presiding Eldership.

A correspondent of the Chicago Republican writes from Beardstown, Ill:

"The venerable Dr Cartwright is the well-known presiding elder of the Beardstown district, Methodist Episcopal Church He has but recently closed his last quarterly meeting in this place, and his fiftieth year as a presiding elder is just drawing to a close. At the last annual Illinois Conference, held at Quincy, last September, a commission was appointed to prepare for an appropriate celebration of Dr Cartwright's services to the Church in the capacity of presiding elder No man in the history of the Methodist Church can claim a similar record, and the jubilee is to be arranged on a scale fitting the occasion.

"This semi centennial celebration will take place on Friday, September 24, at Lincoln, Ill., during the sitting of the Illinois Conference at that place.

"Dr. Cartwright is now in the eighty-eighth year of his age, and notwithstanding the many hardships he has endured, he still refuses to yield to the encroachments of time. The public will doubtless hear, with surprise, that soon after the adjournment of conference he purposes starting for California, over the Pacific road, and that it is his intention to spend the winter on the Pacific coast. The commissioners of the road at New York city have given him a pass to San Francisco. He will return to Illinois in the spring, and early in the season will set sail for Europe."

A London paper says Spurgeon's sermons are read, and so is his nose

THE UNIVERSALIST BELIEF.—The following is the Confession of Faith accepted by the General Convention of Universalists, at its session in Winchester, New Hampshire, A. D. 1803:

"We believe that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament contains a revelation of the character of God and of the duty, interest and final destination of mankind.

We believe that is one God, whose nature is love, revealed in one Lord Jesus Christ, by one Holy Spirit of grace, who will finally restore the whole family of mankind, to holiness and happiness.

We believe that holiness and true happiness are inseparably connected; and that believers ought to maintain order, and practice good works, for these things are good and profitable unto men."

National Temperance Convention.

CHICAGO, Sept 1.

The National Temperance Convention, called for the object of forming a temperance party for political purposes, assembled at Farwell Hall, in this city, at eleven o'clock to-day. At the opening of the proceedings about 300 persons were in the hall, probably 200 of whom were delegates. D. R. Forshing, of Indiana, called the meeting to order, and John Russell, of Michigan, was made temporary chairman. He thanked the Convention for the honor. J. A. Spencer, of Ohio, J. H. Brigman, of Illinois, were elected temporary secretaries.

Mr. Woodall, of Conn., offered a resolution that all delegates be considered as members of the convention who practice and advocate tetotallism, who favor prohibition and manufacture of liquor, and the importation or sale of the same.

The chaplain was in favor of a third political party. If there was to be a third party, then he and his party were with them; if not, they might be counted out.

Dr. Jewett, of Tennessee, was opposed to that part of the call which advised dissolution of old political parties. He could not agree to it.

Mr. Ransom, of New Jersey, also opposed the idea of a new party. This idea would rule out two thirds of all present. They wanted the sentiment of the temperance men of the country, and if they desired a third party it was all right. There was great diversity of opinion on this point.

Mr. Chester differed from Mr. Ransom, and believed the call was an invitation for a convention of men in favor of forming a distinct political party.

Mr. Goodale found the call ambiguous—part of it inviting all temperance men to attend—and another inviting only those in favor of forming a distinct party, founded on temperance principles. He was here for the purpose of organizing such a party.

Garrett Smith said he wanted this convention to feel itself shut up to the terms of the call. He denied that the terms of the call were ambiguous—they want distinct political action and organization.

Judge Black denied the terms of the calls were not clear and explicit. They meant the formation of a new party.

Mr. Goodale's resignation was laid on the table.

Hon. Jas. Black, of Pennsylvania, was chosen permanent President

Committees of one from each State were reappointed on the platform, and committee on business appointed. After the transaction of considerable business having reference to details the Convention adjourned until 7:30 p m.

The evening session was devoted to speech-making by a number of delegates

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD TITUSVILLE, Sept. 1, 1869—3 P. M.

A state of extreme quietude prevailed in the market on the creek to-day, and although the feeling at the close be fairly considered a shade weaker, yet the offerings are limited to a few lots, and prices are scarcely quotably lower. On the Lower Creek most of the sales that took place during the day were effected at $5.40, but at four o'clock, bids for round lots were reported at $5 45. At Miller and Titusville the demand was light, but the offering and asking prices were without alteration.

COOKING STOVE,

For Coal and Wood.

For Economy in Fuel;

For Durability;

For Capacity in Baking, Boiling, Broiling, and Roasting;

For Simplicity in Management;

For Cleanliness in Cooking;

For Great Power of Heat in Baking and Roasting, with a very small Consumption of Fuel;

For Beauty of Design;

For Smoothness of Castings and Elegance of Finish;

STANDS UNEQUALED.

In offering to the public a few facts and recommendations concerning the

Peerless Cook Stove,

We beg to remark that after twenty-five years' experience in the manufacture of stoves, we have at last attained the position sought for, that of offering to the public the most ever made. One prominent fact which sustains us in this assertion is the remarkable success the 'PEERLESS' has had since its introduction to the public three years ago. The sale has already reached many thousand Stoves, and we have been obliged to enlarge our Foundry in order to keep pace with our orders.

By a new and patented method of introducing hot air into the oven, the following VALUABLE RESULTS are obtained:

1st. An EQUAL TEMPERATURE in all parts of the oven, so that no article, while baking or roasting, requires to be changed or turned.

2d. A GREAT SAVING in amount of FUEL required in Baking.

3d. Complete ventilation of the Oven, a current of heated air constantly passing through it.

4th. A new method of conveying air upon the fire, consuming the gases, and making a gas-burner of practical utility.

5th. Meats are roasted in the oven as perfectly as in a tin kitchen before an open fire. This result we obtained by the current of heated air continually passing through the oven. We have a new arrangement of Roasting spit, which works admirably, and must be seen in order to be fully appreciated. Meats in other ovens are baked, in the 'PEERLESS' they are roasted.

NO DUST CAN ESCAPE while shaking or dumping the Grate, and the arrangement of the Ash Pan is very simple, and works admirably.

The fire can be perfectly controlled and kept through an entire season without rekindling.

It has a new Regulator for controlling the draft.

IT HAS A LARGE OVEN AND IS A QUICK BAKER.

It works equally well for coal or wood.

It is mounted in the best manner, and for beauty of design and smoothness of castings cannot be surpassed.

It is the HEAVIEST stove in the market, and therefore very durable.

Not being complicated in its arrangement, it is very easy to manage, and does not, like many of the first-class stoves, require a course of instruction to know how to use it.

We line the fire box in an improved manner, and the brick will last much longer that in other stoves.

The doors are lined with tin.

The tank can be taken off without disconnecting the smoke-pipe, and the stove made with six holes.

PEEKSKILL, Aug. 4, 1868.

MESSRS. PRATT & WENTWORTH:

The 'Peerless' Cooking Stove gave entire satisfaction, and daily grows in our admiration. It certainly surpasses any other which we have ever tried, and we thought we had the very best before.

Very truly yours, HENRY WARD BEECHER.

N. EASTON, Aug. 26, 1868.

MESSRS. PRATT & WENTWORTH:

Gentlemen; In reply to your inquiry, will say that the Extension Top, 'Peerless' Stove, purchased of you last May, has proved entirely satisfactory. With a small quantity of fuel, either wood or coal, it bakes and broils admirably, and fully equals your representation in every particular, which, at the time, we thought rather extravagant.

Truly yours, OAKES AMES.

"Old Rosey."

General Rosecrans' letter to the Ohio Democracy declining the nomination for Governor is the worst thunderbust that has befallen that organization since the same patriotic soldier thrust the seditious Vallandigham outside the Union lines and made him "a man without a country." In the nomination of Old Rosey the Democracy caught a Tartar. In declining to be their standard bearer, he reads them a pertinent homily on their departure from Democratic landmarks, and shows them that their modern professions are utterly at war with all their earlier teachings. It may be considered ungrateful in Rosey, but it is nevertheless true. The Democratic party, he says, ought to be the party of progress, of liberal ideas, of equal rights, of law and order. It ought to insist on the honest payment of the debt, without cavil, "even though its present holders should have brought it below its fair value." It ought, he thinks, to demand such a policy as will more quickly raise our bonds to par, whereupon he believes the currency will follow; that is to say, he unwittingly praises Secretary Boutwell.

The Democratic party ought also, he thinks, to advocate a thorough revision and reformation of the tax system on the principles of free trade It ought to oppose all removals from office, except for good cause, such as inefficiency or dishonesty. It ought to "favor a broad rather than a narrow basis of suffrage"

All this the Democratic party ought to do, General Rosecrans tells the Ohio Democrats; and the whole country will agree with him.

"The Democratic party ought to be a party of principle, a party of life, of action and of progress. Fossils and limb floaters do not properly belong to the party, and if found in it ought to go on the retired list, leaving to its opponents, of all shades and grades, all narrow and sectional grounds, all monopolies and favoritism, based on class, creed race, color or national origin. The Democratic party of the United States ought to hold high the banner of universal freedom, impartial justice and equality before the law of all who live beneath the flag of our country.

"What of old gave the Democratic party in the United States its prestige and spirit was its profound faith in the capacity of man for self government and progress, under institutions based on the great principles of liberty, fraternity and equality before the law, and its courage in carrying the logic of its faith into action Thence arose that discipline, order and progressive originality which have marked its history and made its victorious banner the symbol of hope to lovers of freedom at home and abroad"

The trouble with the Democratic party is that its character in all respects is exactly the reverse of what it ought to be as described by General Rosecrans, yet all this snubbing and repudiation on the part of the man whom they had chosen to be their standard bearer in the fall campaign might be charitably overlooked and forgiven, were it not for the General's concluding admonition, viz:

"Should there be Democrats whose mental organization or temper does not permit them to recognize existing facts or conform their action to great political changes, let them, for the public good, abdicate the leadership, and leave the energies of the people free to act in the line of life and progress"

This capped the climax, for before his letter was made public the men to whom it was addressed had nominated Pendleton in his place—one of the very leaders whom Rosecrans invited to abdicate. To be sure the letter may prove a blessing in disguise" to the Democracy, but they are not likely to "see it" during the present campaign The Democrats of Pennsylvania ought to condole with their stricken Ohio brethren, but how can they, when the arrow from Rosecrans transfixes both Packer and Pendleton.

The Treatment of Rebel Prisoners at Camp Douglas.—A Falsehood Refuted

About every Democratic newspaper in the country has published a series of anonymous statements originated by the Southern press, professing to give an account of certain alleged cruelties perpetrated by Federal officers, at Camp Douglas, in the summer of 1864 They are a mere repetition of ancient scandals, the falsehood of which was satisfactorily exposed at the time One relates to a Lieutenant Farocion, who shot a poor boy who was mumbling bones out of a hard tack barrel. Another refers to the shooting of a North Carolina boy while he was building a fire A third states how twelve hundred prisoners were compelled to stand for twelve hours under a burning sun, while the guard amused themselves by firing into the mass and shooting them down indiscriminately. No names are given in support of these dreadful assertions, with the exception of the said Farocion

The Chicago Tribune has taken the trouble to submit these printed rumors to Brigadier General B J Sweet, who was then Commandant of the post, and he states that no such person as Lieutenant Farocion was ever in Camp Douglas With regard to the charges made, Gen. Sweet very properly declines to take any notice of them unless they are authenticated by the names of parties. The prison at Camp Douglas was open to the inspection of any person in 1864 and it does not need the authority of the former Commandment to emphatically deny the anonymous charges referred to. No sane man can believe for a moment that any such atrocities were ever committed. But if any testimony, other than that of General Sweet, be deemed necessary, it is afforded in a letter addressed to the Tribune by a rebel soldier who was a prisoner at Camp Douglas at the time the outrages aforesaid are alleged to have been committed. It wholly disproves the accusations. The writer says:

Now let me state my experience at Camp Douglas During my imprisonment there for nearly three years, I was better fed, clothed and cared for, generally, than I was in the Confederate ranks. Many and bitter were the imprecations of our Federal guards at the palpable fact that we were treated better than they were themselves—which hundreds of my comrades will attest, besides many friends of mine in Chicago city.

Never was there punishment, corporal or any other, inflicted upon any "Confederate" prisoner in Camp Douglas, unless for wanton violation of rules necessary to the discipline of the camp

The idea of "volley after volley" of musketry being fired, by 150 or 200 guards, at short range, into a body of 1,200 men, huddled together so closely as to touch each other, with a loss of only two killed and several wounded, is too ridiculous for any man that ever saw or felt a battle, to believe.

I could "rah for Semore," and I can take "you 'uns" and "we 'uns" by the hand, but when I see a government, to whose clemency I feel that I and many others owe our lives, assailed with such a base calumny, I cannot but be influenced by the maxim of giving the "devil his due."

THE Wheeler & Wilson Family Sewing Machine has been before the public for eighteen years. It has been subjected to the severest tests and the most bitter competition; it alone took the first premium at the World's Fair in London and the French Exposition in 1867, where all machines of any note were in competition, and its sales now are greater than those of any other machine. Where is Death?

A SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION.

Oh! tell me, Mother, where is Death?
I cannot find it here;
I only find still more of life
Each moment, in this sphere.
I'm up here, mother, where the flowers
Pour forth their fragrant breath,
And no one in these angel bowers
Can tell me aught of Death.

And when thy burning tear-drops fell
Upon my pallid brow,
I heard thee cry in agony,
"I have no daughter now."
But hadst thou seen the angel throng
That bore thy child away,
Thou 'dst not have dropped another tear
Upon my pulseless clay.

They told thee, Mother, I must die,
And slumber neath the sod,
Until at some far distant day,
I heard the voice of God.
But such sweet tones of melody
Are falling on my ear
I know this must be Heaven,
And Our Father must be here.

Oh! thou wouldst never say again,
"My Child is in the grave,"
Couldst thou but see the fountains bright
In which I bourly lave;—
Couldst thou but feel upon thy brow,
My warm seraphic breath,
Thou'dst know that it had never known,
The fearful chill of Death.

But list! again I hear the harp,
In the celestial bowers;
Their tones are falling on my ear
Like dew upon the flowers,
And as they o'er my senses steal,
I almost hold my breath,
Lest thou dear Mother, shouldst not hear
Them sing, "there is no Death."

Lady Thorn Ahead Again.

Nearly all the general, public interest in the turf this season centers in the three famous fast mares Lady Thorn, American Girl and Goldsmith Maid. They have done considerable work, and the appearance of either of them has been sufficient on every occasion to attract a large assemblage. The performances of these mares throughout the season present a rather chequered slate. Lady Thorn beat American Girl in her matches early in the season on the Fashion Course, L. I., and beat Goldsmith Maid in a match last month on the Union Course. American Girl beat Lady Thorn in a subsequent race on the Fashion Course, and also at Narragansett Park. She has also beaten Goldsmith Maid four times this summer—at Prospect Park, Union Course, Mystic Park and Narragansett Park; while Goldsmith Maid has turned the tables on American Girl on two occasions—at Suffolk Park (Philadelphia) and at Buffalo. The American Girl at Narragansett Park in June, made one heat in 2:19; Goldsmith Maid, at Buffalo last month, trotted three heats, all under 2:20. At the trot of Saturday last on Prospect Park Course, L. I., Lady Thorn recovered her former position by beating both American Girl and Goldsmith Maid. Her time was 2:20¾ 2:20¾, 2:20¼. It will be seen that the telegraph erred in stating that this was the fastest time ever made in three straight heats; for, as above stated, Goldsmith Maid's work at Buffalo recently excelled this. Some of the New York papers, however, hold that in reality this was not the case, since, as it is alleged, the Buffalo track is short of a mile. It is stated that the managers are well aware of this fact, it having been altered and reduced in length since Dexter made his world's famous record over it in 2:17¼. The Narragansett Park, according to the evidence of the Secretary of the Association, only measures a full mile three feet six inches from the fence, instead of exactly three feet from it, which of course reduces its actual length materially. But the Long Island tracks are all full measured miles, and something over, the Prospect Park being 15 feet over. These statments, if true, must, of course, be taken into account in estimating the comparative merit of the performances of the three animals.

NORWALK, Dec 19, 1868.

This may certify, that I have been troubled with Chronic Dyspepsia for more than twenty years, and until about the 1st of May or June, 1867, when I purchased one bottle of Whittlesey's Dyspepsia Cure, and commenced taking a teaspoonful at a dose just after each meal of victuals, and before using the whole bottle, began to find some relief; but not having confidence in any medicine in my case, concluded that I would be encouraged from the temporary relief to continue the whole bottle, when I felt so much better I purchased another bottle, but did not take it on account of the first and in the course of three months was so much better that I began to lessen the doses and the time of taking it, but keep it in the house all the time in the case of any future attack, and now I count myself well, but not entirely free from its original effects

Griffin's Patent

WATER PACKER.

This is one of the most useful Patents ever put on record. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or Water Packer in use.

1st It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean.

2d It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily

EVERY OTHER PACKER IN USE HAS FAST ENED STRINGS OF TUBING AND CASING, SO THEY CANNOT BE DRAWN FROM THE WELL

3d It is so constructed by means of a left hand screw thread that it can be loosened in a few minutes and removed from the well without difficulty Even the caving in of the rock above the packer will not prevent the casing being drawn out readily It can be taken out and put back without repairs

This is the only Water Packer in use that has a Patent on, all others being an infringement upon the rights secured by letters Patent granted by the United States to Anson D Griffin, August 19th, 1867 The Packer is now offered to the public at the low price of Twelve Dollars each, and the money will be refunded by us or our agents to all parties buying them where they do not give entire satisfaction

Good Pure Water

FOR EVERYBODY.

ROSE'S PAT. WATER WELL,

IS NOW KNOWLEDGED TO BE

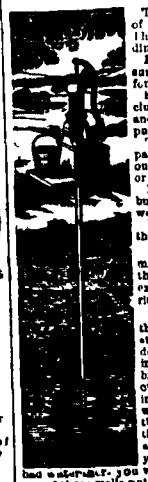
SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS,

as thousands can testify

Every Family should have one of these Wells.

STATE AND COUNTY RIGHTS FOR SALE

Great inducements to purchasers



These wells will yield a barrel of water in three minutes The advantages claimed over ordinary wells are—

First They descend below the surface water, and tap the pure fountains

Second They effectually exclude all filth and surface water, and contains no vacuum for impure air, and therefore is pure

Third They are made with dispatch, in summer or winter without any accumulation of rubbish or litter

Fourth Neither rats, mice, bugs or worms can get into the wells

Fifth They are less expensive than ordinary wells by one half

Sixth By an ingenious arrangement a fine strainer is applied to the inside of the pipe effectually excluding all sand or dirt from rising with the water

It should be remembered that the filthy accumulations of our streets and yards are sending their death dealing impurities not only in the atmosphere which we breathe, but that every drop of water that finds its way into the common open mouthed well is carries with it a portion of these impurities There is no one thing that so induces good health as pure spring water and when you find a locality where there is bad water near, you will find sickness. Those wishing one of these wells put down call on
